Generative Art

---

Final Project

- For my final project, I'm thinking about diving into some generative art. I'm still on the fence about whether to start fresh or jazz up my Speech Jam project. That project kinda shows the direction I wanna head in, and throwing in a speech aspect makes it better. My goal is to make a canvas that keeps evolving with generative art, changing every second to keep viewers hooked. If I end up using Speech Jam, I'd probably tweak the art patterns. Here are some sketches done to get ideas going. In addition, I want to add a title screen to introduce the piece to the viewer and give the project more of a art exhibition style and give it more structure.

- I'm also playing with the idea of mixing things up with Perlin Noise and Sine Waves. The biggest challenge is probably gonna be blending these different vibes to create something that looks and feels right. As for making it interactive, I'm keen on keeping the speech thing but wanna see if I can make it respond to something like hand movements too.
